CUSTOMERS at Sainsbury's in Jackson Square, Bishop's Stortford, had their shopping packed with military precision when an army of cadets manned the checkouts.

The cadets, aged 13 to 18, were raising money for Sport Relief and substituted their usual military uniforms for bright yellow sports kits on Saturday March 15.

The unit, nicknamed the Panthers, met shoppers at the entrance of the store as well as assisting with bag packing.

Customers were also encouraged to buy raffle tickets for the chance to win an entertainments centre in a draw organised by the store.

The cadets were drawn from 494
